Newly Invented Greek Fire.

A chemist of Marseilles professes to have compounded a Greek fire which, in his opinion, will put an end to all war. His description of its qualities is a little startling. He can envelope an army of one hundred thousand men with a sea of fire in less than five minutes, and at a distance of one thousand metres. He will only need a few minutes to set an inland town blazing, while to do the same office for a seaport town will be the work of seconds. In a naval combat he will cover the deck with a torrent of fire, and stifle the crew below like so many rats. As to the fortress of Luxemburg, about which there is so muck talk, he engages to oust the Prussian garrison within a quarter of an hour. There will be no call for his services at Luxemburg, however, now that the peace treaty is signed.

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

WASHINGTON, May 18, 1867.
Editors Memphis Appeal:

The riotous disposition manifested by some of the blacks in certain of the southern cities, produces very painful apprehensions here, among some of the most intelligent observers. This feeling is not confined exclusively to the conservatives. Prominent members of the republican party share in this feeling. Some who were in Richmond recently have returned with very sad impressions of the disposition of the colored population there. Some persons, whose opinions are worth consideration, do not hesitate to say that they fear the worst at the south. But all men of conservative opinions agree in expressing the hope that every possible precaution may be used to prevent outbreaks, inasmuch as they cannot but act prejudicially in a political point of view. Certain it is, the disposition the blacks are constantly manifesting at certain points to turbulence, is alarming and troubling some of the most ultra men of the radical school. Some of these men in private do not hesitate to admit that, after all, the blacks may not prove worthy of the duties demanded of them. Consummate prudence and forbearance is pre-eminently the policy of the white race south at this juncture.

The treasury is beginning to find difficulty in providing for its numerous engagements. The last congress scattered the public money with a prodigal hand, in the shape of increased bounties, etc., determined to buy popularity at any price; and now the revenue of the government is constantly falling off. This is owing, in a large degree, to the paralysis caused by the unsettled condition of the country. It is thought in some quarters that it will be necessary to have an actual session of congress at the time to which the adjournment took place, in order to place the treasury in a stronger position.

It is a curious fact that our government has to foot up a handsome bill for the expenses of the Fenian trials at Toronto, Canada. The object was to obtain every legal and possible assistance for the captured Fenians who were on trial. It seems singular, however, that our government should employ lawyers to defend these cases. But it is very important to show proper sympathy in the fate of those who excite the sympathy of our Irish population.

There has been for some time an impression that, in some way or other, the treasury department was being robbed. The most searching examinations have taken place lately, but without obtaining any very important information. A few days ago a colored preacher, who was in high favor, having, according to the evidence, access to the money safe, was arrested for stealing the public money. The evidence on his examination showed pretty clearly that he had not been able to resist the extraordinary temptation to which he was subjected.

The regulations in bankruptcy recently adopted are now in the hands of the printer, and will be out in a few days. The regulations with the bankrupt act, will make the system intelligible and harmonious. The number of applications for the position of register is very numerous, and many persons from the south applying for this office are found to have been loyal, whose loyalty was entirely unknown to their neighbors during the war. Some one remarking upon upon this, said he expected, at no very distant date, it would be very difficult to find a real out-and-out secessionist south.

We have in the morning papers another batch of murders at the north. No notice is taken of their occurrence, but if anybody is killed south, it is a horrible matter. One would have supposed that the establishment of common schools, which is to bring about the millenium, would have long since put an end to these constantly recurring murders north.

LATE FROM WASHINGTON.

Special Dispatch to St. Louis Republican.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Col. J. P. Luse, of Lower California, arrived here to-day via Mexico, where he had an interview with President Juarez, at San Luis Potosi, on April 23d. He found the liberal leader with thirty thousand troops and fully confident of destroying every vestige of the empire in the next three months. He had laid the city of Mexico under siege, and regarded its capture as a question of brief time.

Maximilian was at Querretaro with about fifteen thousand men, not more than half of whom were believed by Juarez to be serviceable. The Mexican Generals Escobedo and Corrona had Querretaro surrounded. In reply to an inquiry, Juarez said that if Escobedo captured Maximilian, he would surely execute him, and that Juarez could not prevent it. The above information, although coming from Mexico, is regarded as correct, and has been communicated to the government.

A crowd of visitors were at the executive mansion to-day to see the president, among whom were a large number of ladies. Secretary Seward and Secretary McCulloch had an interview with the president this forenoon.

The secretary of the interior is now able to attend his office daily, but does not attempt to do any business. He was still very weak, but rapidly recovering, and will soon be able to attend the duties of his office.

For the week ending on Tuesday, the 28th instant, three hundred and two patents will be issued from the patent office. During the past week over five hundred applications and eighty caveats were filed.

The board heard the continued evidence to-day of Attorney-General Stanberry, in relation to the procedure in getting pardons through his office. Assistant Secretary Chandler was also present and testified. Gen. Baker was also examined, in connection with the previous evidence which he had submitted.

Gen. Grant and lady accompanied by his father and Gens. Dent, Thomas and Patterson of his staff, started for Richmond on Saturday morning and arrived there that afternoon, on a visit to his brother-in-law. The general has left his family at Old Point, where they will be the guests of Gen. Scofield during the summer months. After this it is rumored that he will visit the scene of his old campaign on horseback. The Richmond Whig proposes that Gen. Lee accompany him as a measure to produce a harmonizing effect on both sections.

Congressional printer Defrees says he did not refuse to employ the Tennessee printer recommended by the president, and alluded to in a dispatch a day or two since, on account of such recommendation, but because he was discharging instead of employing more printers.

The appointments of registers in bankruptcy for Ohio, were completed to-day and forwarded to the United States judges of that state. The authorities refused to make them public until they were confirmed by said judges.

By the census of Virginia, appearing in Richmond papers to-day, the white voters have a majority of 50,000, but a large proportion of this number are disfranchised by the reconstruction act.

STATE ITEMS.

—A company of Brownlow's pets, as they style themselves, sixty-four strong, from Bradley county, East Tennessee, passed through Nashville Monday en route to Brownsville. The Banner says the majority of the men (?) seemed to be between seventeen and twenty years old, and of that lazy, shiftless class who hang around the groggeries of small country towns. They had no discipline, and deported themselves in a very noisy and unruly manner whilst in the city.
—Gen. Jim Brownlow attacked a Mr. Crawford, clerk at the Chattanooga depot, on the street, at Nashville, Monday, accusing him of abusing him (Brownlow) the Sunday previous. After exacting an apology, the doughty hero adopted a suggestion from the assembled crowd who had witnessed his gallantry, to take a drink, and soon quieted down his cholor in the friendly juice of Robertson county. Nice affair for the king's son to be mixed in!
—Hon. Emerson Etheridge will speak at Nashville on Saturday next, 25th inst.
—Registration at Nashville is being rapidly completed.
—Cherries have appeared in the Nashville market.
—The May term of the circuit court commenced at Nashville on Monday.
—The base ball club at Chattanooga, thus far, holds the palm of superiority over any in the state. The Press and Times indignantly asks wherefore all the crack base ball clubs of Nashville, that the little town of Chattanooga should be allowed the undisputed championship of the state?
—Mr. Etheridge made a three hours' speech at Trenton on the 13th inst., and the Gazette of that place says: He came announcing a great sentiment—laying down a broad and safe platform. It was equal and exact justice to all, both white and black. He defied any one to point to a single rebellious sentiment he had ever uttered. It could not be done. He did not, in his speech of 1865, at this place, as all could bear him witness, raise his voice against the majesty of constitutional law. But, on the other hand, in the resolutions he offered, counseled obedience to such law.
—The preliminary surveys of the Lebanon and Gallatin railroads have been commenced.
—At present travel is light over all the railroads leading from Nashville. There is also comparatively little freight being transported by the different lines. This dullness of course comes with the season, and business is expected to revive early in autumn.

PERHAPS the best pun recorded was that inscribed on a tea-chest, viz: "Tu doces." These words are the second person singular of the verb doceo, to teach, and when literally translated become "Thou tea-chest."

[WESTERN ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORTS.]

ANNAPOLIS, MD., May 22.—In the state constitutional convention to-day, a minority report was submitted from the committee on the declaration of rights, which substituted for the clause providing for negro testimony in the courts of the state, the words "nor shall any person be deemed incompetent as witness or juror on account of his belief, profession or practice." The report was ordered to be printed.

MOBILE, May 22.—A court of inquiry has been ordered to convene here to investigate the late riot. Col. Shepherd has issued an order retaining all the present policemen of the city government.

CHARLESTON, May 22.—Gen. Sickles has issued an order prohibiting the distillation of spirits from grain in the second military district. Offenses are declared punishable by military commission. The reasons assigned for the issuing of this order are, the scarcity of food in South Carolina, and the defrauding of the government of a large amount of revenue.

BERLIN, May 20.—A horrible plot has been discovered in Hanover for the assassination of King William. Count Bismark and several notables in this city are involved. Several arrests have been made, and it is thought the scheme is entirely frustrated.

NEW YORK, May 22.—A Washington special says the information of the failure of Frazer, Trenholm & Co., of Liverpool, agents of the late Confederate government in Europe, caused some excitement. The state department had instituted suits in the English courts against the firm for the recovery of vessels, cotton, munitions of war and other property of the Confederacy, held by them, the suits covering several million dollars. It is understood that the United States government is amply secured, and will incur no loss by the failure.

LOUISVILLE, May 22.—The ladies' relief association has collected three thousand dollars for the suffering poor in the south.

VOLCANIC ERUPTION AT SEA.

A Remarkable Natural Phenomenon—Earth Thrown Up Through the Sea to a Hight of 2000 Feet.

An interesting letter has just been received by Mr. Wm. Logan, Glasgow, from the Rev. Dr. George Turner, missionary, author of "Nineteen Years in Polynesia," dated Samoa or Navigator's Islands, South Pacific, November 29, 1866. We make the following extract:

On the 12th of September, a little after noon, a commotion was observed in the deep blue sea, about a mile and a half from Olosenga, and three and a half from Tau. It appeared like surf breaking over a sunken rock. Some thought it might be a whale blowing, and others that it was a shoal of bonito. This unusual commotion continued all day, and by the following morning, at daylight, volcanic action was unmistakable. At first the eruptions were at intervals of about an hour. They went on increasing for two days, and on the 15th there were fifty in the hour. For three days longer there was one continued succession of outbursts. The natives gazed in amazement at the great jets of mud and dense columns of other volcanic matter rising in terrific grandeur two thousand feet above the level of the sea. These again branched out into clouds of dust, blackening the sky, and covering up Olosenga from the sight of the people on Tau. The roar of the eruptions, and the collision and crash of the masses of rock met in their downward course from the clouds by others flying up were fearful. Quantities of fused obsidian, too, threw off the most lovely fragments, which shone and sparkled in the sunshine like thousands of pendants from a crystal gasalier. No flame appeared; only once or twice was there a gleam of fire seen in the matter thrown up. The sea was most violently agitated, and boiled and bubbled furiously in a great basin half a mile in diameter. After a time the ocean had a light sulphur tinge for ten miles round. Heaps or dead fish were washed ashore, and among these sea monsters six and twelve feet long, which the natives had never seen before, and for which they have no name. The sulphurous vapors, heat and smoke and ashes, soon made the settlement on Olosenga in a line with the volcano unbearable, and the people fled to a place a little way to the south. A slight tremulous motion continued to be felt on land, but no fissure opened, nor have any hot springs made their appearance. The ordinary springs of hot water are also unaffected. After three days the violent action began to abate, and on the 11th of November, when the teacher from whom I have my information left, there were only three or four in the twelve hours, and the hight to which the matter was thrown was reduced to twenty or thirty feet above the level of the sea. No cone or other uplifting has appeared above the surface of the ocean, nor is there any apparent uplifting or subsidence of the adjacent small islands.

IN pursuance of the provisions of a Trust Deed to me executed by A. KALSOMINING!
The undersigned are introducing this beautiful finish for Walls and Ceilings, so much used in Europe and Eastern cities, and are now prepared to execute all orders with neatness and dispatch.
KALSOMINE is a chemical composition, and all colors, from the lily or snow-white to the darkest shades, can be produced, and when applied makes a finish nearly equal to the best paint, and is much cheaper than paint or paper hangings. It will purify the walls and prevent bugs or vermin, thereby promoting health and comfort. IT WILL NOT RUB OFF, nor soil the most delicate fabric. It is done with dispatch and lasts several years, and possesses many advantages over paint or paper, and is superior to the common whitewash.
Ceilings finished with the lily or snow-white. Walls tinted in French and Silver Greys, Lilac, Drabs or any other color desired. Orders promptly attended to, and satisfaction guaranteed.

MORE SHERIDAN.

A New Orleans special says an order from military headquarters forbids the carrying of fire arms openly or secretly by any citizen except in performance of official duty. The offender is to be tried by military commission.—Avalanche.

We notice the statement that, at the riot in Mobile, very few of the whites were armed, while every negro was so. The same, no doubt, is the case in New Orleans; and SHERIDAN'S order will, if it has any effect, result in disarming the whites, leaving every negro with a revolver. In Tennessee there has always been a law, decided constutional long ago by the Supreme Court, making it a penal offence to carry concealed weapons, and the white citizens of Memphis, in general, obey it. How many pistols have been sold to negroes here within two years? How many have been sold or distributed within a few days? There is hardly a negro man in this city that does not carry a revolver. Are they ever disarmed or punished for it? If the Police can break into a house supposed to be a hell or brothel, to see whether any misdemeanor is being committed in it, can they not inspect vagabonds loafing on the streets, to ascertain whether they are carrying concealed weapons?

For ourself, we have always believed, with the Supreme Court of Arkansas, that the law prohibiting the carrying of concealed weapons was unconstitutional; and that the Legislature would have precisely the same right to prohibit keeping arms in our houses, lest we might, perchance, misuse them; and, also, that the effect of such a law is to disarm good men, who reverence the law, and leave the bad, who contemn it, to go about armed at their pleasure.

CONFISCATION DISCUSSED.

The Grand Jury in the Circuit Court of the United States at Richmond, Va., in which, in the absence of Chief Justice CHASE, that shame and scandal of the Judiciary presides who thought a jury could be packed to convict JEFFERSON DAVIS, is composed partly of negroes and JOHN MINOR BOTTS. A Richmond correspondent of the New York Times gives this humorous account of its sessions:

"John Minor Botts, grown savage in appearance by the hirsute appendages he has added to his face, has tried in vain to stop the flow of this torrent of African eloquence by explaining that the grand jury have nothing whatever to do with the subjects so provocative of talk; but his colored co-jurors consider themselves wiser than he, and pay no attention to his protests. Poor Botts! He sowed the wind and now he reaps the whirlwind. When he is told substantially, 'Gor a mity, Mr. Botts, doesn't de colored people want land, and how is dey goin' to get it widout it's confiscated and gub to 'em?' This grand jury has been in session four hours per day each day since Monday last, and as yet have not acted upon a single indictment; and the explanation is that the negro members occupy all the time in making speeches upon the duty of the government to confiscate the lands of the south—a duty they seem to think they can, in their capacity as grand jurors, somehow aid in fulfilling."

Massachusetts Morality.

"Extremes meet" is an old proverb, and one that has been verified in the appalling case of immorality in Massachusetts which was reported in yesterday's Herald. Amidst the most puritanical community in the world, where they force morality down people's throats, where to look awry is almost a crime, where people melt away in sorrow for the poor negro, where to touch whisky or wine is regarded immoral, and where all the theories for the improvement of other people are agitated—there we find a man, educated and highly honored, who united in himself the characters of a preacher of the gospel, a legislator of the state, and chairman of the school committee of the town, guilty of crimes that are not fit to be mentioned. We know of nothing to be compared to the disgusting wickedness of this reverend and honorable Mr. Howe, in modern times and in a civilized country. The fact is, the pretended morality or humanity of Massachusetts is nothing but profound hypocrisy. There is not, probably, so wicked a city in the world as Boston. With a great outside show of decency and morality, there is a vast amount of secret vice. It is much the same throughout the state. Such crimes as we refer to could not occur in any other state of society. From such great pretenses, with so much hypocrisy, the worst crimes naturally spring.—New York Herald.

MORAL OUTLAWS.

DICK BUSTEED, once a New York politician and now United States District Judge in Alabama, lately addressed a mass meeting in Mobile. Among other things he said:

We have met "for the purpose of conferring and consulting together," and the first leading object of the meeting is declared in the call for it to be, to "establish and promote harmony and accord between the two races who are now brought face to face in new political relations." What manner of man is he who shall refuse to co-operate in this work? How shall his wickedness be measured who by speech or acts seeks to create ill-will in the minds of either race against the other? Surely none but an outlaw, whose hand is against every man's, and whose moral nature is festering in its own infamy, will be found opposing or obstructing the firm establishment of peace and amity between the two races that inhabit the southern portion of our common country. If such an one exists among us let him meet the doom he courts—let every man's hand be against him.

Judge BUSTEED belongs body and soul to the party of which THAD. STEVENS is Dictator, and whose representatives in Congress have enacted into laws every thing proposed by their Chief, except his Confiscation bill, which he preferred to hold in terror over the heads of the people of the South, and as a bribe to the negroes, until next winter, when 'the party' will be dragooned by him into passing it.

It is not those who oppose investing the negro with the right of suffrage, that are "opposing or obstructing the firm establishment of peace and amity between the two races;" but those who insist upon giving them a right to vote which they do not need, the value of which they cannot appreciate, and which can only end in their ruin and that of the country. The greatest enemy of any race is he who, like BUSTEED, imposes upon any race an office or function the duties of which they are not capable of performing. It is those who are exciting the negro and placing him in antagonism to his employer by the bribe of confiscation, that are "outlaws, whose hands are against every man's, and whose moral natures are festering in their own infamy." BUSTEED happily describes STEVENS and his subalterns. They are miscreants, who, if they had their just deserts, would swing higher than HAMAN to-morrow.

On this subject, we take the following from the St. Louis Republican:

NEGRO MANIA FOR CONFISCATION.

The Boston Journal (radical) notices as "a painful but significant development, that the idea of confiscation should have been brought out so strongly" by the negroes of the south, as manifested by their clamors for it in their public meetings. It observes that at Richmond nearly all the black speakers advocated such a measure with the hearty approval of their hearers; and that at other points it has required all the efforts of the judicious to suppress similar demonstrations. The Journal adds: "It does not appear that in this matter the negroes have borrowed the thoughts of Thaddeus Stevens and other northern advocates of confiscation."

This "idea of confiscation" is not well received by the best portion of the republican press. Some of the republican journals denounce it outright and some others express a less vehement aversion to it, while still some others give it a very equivocal and hesitating support. Too many of those papers, however, really favor the measure, and among them the worst and most radical (which are at the same time not without their influence) are rabid in their demands for it.

Of course such an idea can only obtain among a people who are reckless of consequences. As a conservative republican journal remarks, "confiscation is the equivalent of general spoliation, anarchy and bloodshed. There can be no liberty without order and no order without ample protection for the rights of property. Invade these rights and inculcate the idea that one class shall be permitted to seize and enjoy the lands and houses of another class, and from that moment the south will become another San Domingo, to end only in the extermination of either whites or blacks." And it might be added in the general destruction of the south.

The Boston Journal thinks that the negroes have not borrowed this confiscation idea from Thaddeus Stevens and other northern advocates of confiscation. But this opinion may be easily contested, when we reflect that there are reading, intelligent negroes both south and north, who are doubtless better posted in the utterance of such men as Stevens than even the majority of white men among us. And there are many such agitators as "Hunnicut," and other "southern loyalists" spotted like him, to whom this "idea" is familiar, and who are untiring in their exertions to make it practical by haranguing mass meetings of the negroes in its favor. By the exertions of black and white orators, who do take a great deal of their inspiration from Stevens and his co-workers in iniquity, and who would be discouraged were it not for the aid they get from such sources, the negroes are inflamed with the desire to get hold of houses and lands through acts of spoliation. Consider the effect of Stevens' movements, when he is allowed to hang over the heads of southern property holders a bill of confiscation which may become law at any time when congress can be wrought up to the required pitch of passion, and be made to act under one of those fits of frenzy to which that body, as now constituted, is so liable. Such demonstrations at the north are constant incentives and encouragements for the confiscation agitators among the southern negroes. Just after the war ended, depraved men or visionaries, mostly from the north, went among the negroes, telling them that they were going to have land parceled out among them. Consequently many of the negroes in some quarters remained idle, not being inclined to engage to work on the land of others, while they hoped to enter so soon on the lands of their own. The impatience of some of them broke out into violent demonstrations. But they were after a while satisfied by such assurances from government authorities, as they were obliged to heed, that their expectations were vain ones. They then abandoned their claims, which they would never have thought of setting up, had they not been badly advised. Just so now. The negroes would never agitate this confiscation question, were it not for the encouragement they receive from demonstrations at the north—such especially as Thaddeus Stevens is making. In confirmation of this statement, take such reports of the doings at these Richmond negro gatherings as we find in a letter from the Richmond correspondent of the Chicago Tribune. The writer, referring to a speaker at one of these meetings, a mulatto of bright skin and bright parts, says of him:

This boy—for he is hardly more—introduced the subject of confiscation, and pressed it on the convention, claiming to act in accordance with Thad Stevens' request to agitate the subject, and by a harangue full of telling points and fiery oratory working up the assembly to such a ferment that the leaders were compelled to appeal to him to consent to a reference of his resolution, and to promise him a place on the committee which should consider it.

Again, the same correspondent, mentioning the appearance of a stalwart negro, who was made "sergeant-at-arms" of the black convention on account of his strength of arm and lungs, makes the following note of him:

He took the affirmative on the confiscation question, and, said he, "Who says we shan't take what congress is a mind to give us?" They've given us our freedom, and the constitutional 'mendment, and the test oath for rebels to take, and the reconstruction, and the supp'ementary—and we've taken 'em all berry thankful. Now who says we shan't take a bit of land, if congress thinks we ought to have it?"

The proof is clear enough that the negroes are not acting spontaneously as the Boston Journal suggests, but under instigations administered by such incendiaries as Thaddeus Stevens, and through the encouragement they derive from congress.

The moderate republican journal we have referred to is of opinion that "men who go about familiarizing the negroes with the demand for confiscation, and persuading them of its justice, should be dealt with by military commanders as incendiaries." Such dealings with these agitators would not transcend the powers claimed for these satraps of the "Great King" Numbers. And should the jurisdiction of these executors of despotic power be extended to cover the district of Lancaster, in Pennsylvania, the residence of Thaddeus Stevens, we might in the arrest and imprisonment of that arch-agitator have an example to show us that authority which is perfectly arbitrary occasionally exhibits a redeeming feature.

BUSTEED immediately proceeded, after the remarks we have quoted, to declare it to be the duty of all Southern men to engage heart and hand in the work of reconstruction. He is a very fit person to decide what it is decent and proper for the people of the South to do. But that is neither here nor there. Every body lectures the Southern people on their duty, now,—even HENRY WILSON, of Natick, Massachusetts. If Scalawagdom does not send much bread to our starving thousands, it is remarkably charitable in good advice, of which, indeed, it is always liberal. The purpose of BUSTEED plainly was, to represent those who are of opinion that the Southern people ought to make at least a little effort to prevent the curse of negro suffrage, as preventing and obstructing harmony between the races. If he meant to say that, he meant to say what was false.

We ourself are as unalterably opposed to negro suffrage, as any man on earth can be. We know that it is neither for their good, or our good, or the good of the country, that the blacks should have thrust upon them a privilege which they are utterly unqualified to exercise. We do not believe that any man who knows the race, by personal acquaintance with it in the South, and who is in favour of their voting, is sane. To give them that right, and put the destinies of States in their hands, is the most damnable crime that any part of the human race has ever committed. If there be indeed any unpardonable sin, any crime astounding in its magnitude, and for which the golden gates of heaven will be eternally closed against the perpetrator, it is that of being principal or accomplice, aider or abettor, under any inducement of profit and advantage, or any plea of necessity or policy, in giving the right of suffrage to the negro.

But we have no feeling of ill-will to the negro. GOD forbid! Whenever his just rights as a freeman or citizen are invaded, we will protect and defend him, without fee or reward. We will denounce any attempt to oppress him; and we will, for his own sake and the country's together, denounce any attempt to use him and mislead him, and invest him with a power that must needs destroy him. As to the poor miserable fools, black and yellow, who think themselves somewhat because they are a little 'smarter' than the rest of their race, and because it chances to be profitable now for Radical and Conservative to cajole them by blandishments and puff them up with importance as the supposed proprietors of negro votes, we simply pity them,—the shallow and conceited fools. What does a Radical care for 'a smart negro,' except to use him? Do negroes ride in Northern coaches with white men? How high, in the Northern States, are they allowed to ascend in the social scale? You have no friends, except those among whom you have always lived, and those you are alienating as fast as possible, that you may become the special property of a few adventurers from the North, who are willing you should vote, as long as you will vote for THEM.

Whether the "fancy negroes" of the city do or do not like what we say, is of no importance to us. We do not want their votes, and never shall. But it will be wise in them, with their new nose-jewel of the right to vote, to remember that the moths, attracted by the light, generally singe their wings. You will find the right of suffrage to be the apples of Sodom, friends!

FREEDOM OF SPEECH.

Every one who knows anything, knows that freedom of speech and of the press are the atmosphere in which liberty lives. Nothing is so odious to a truly free people, as that extravagance of tyranny which muzzles the press, and makes the free utterance of thought in speech an offence, or prevents it in advance.

Despotisms do not dare to tolerate free speech, because it is dangerous to their power. Therefore in France neither the journals or debate is free. But in our country, heretofore, the right to speak and print whatever one may choose, subject to proper responsibility for the abuse of the right has been always deemed indispensable to free government, and guaranteed in the most solemn form by all our Constitutions.

But now, in Virginia, a General forbids a citizen to lecture on the Chivalry of the South, and one in Georgia instructs the Governor of the State that he must not dare to advise the people not to engage in the dirty work of reconstruction: and in Tennessee, which labours under the hallucination that it is a State, the Governor says, in an address to the voters:

Wherever these violent speeches are made, inflaming the bad passions of bad men, I deem it my duty to station troops, and shall do so, although the greatest imaginable freedom of the press and of speech should be allowed to men of all parties, and the conduct of public men and their measures should be criticised without reserve. I do not conceive it to be the duty of the state guards to stand quietly by and hear any man excite the mob spirit by denouncing the federal and state governments—resistance to the courts—and the setting aside of their decisions by force or mob violence.

But an impudent negro from some Northern state can claim freedom of speech to declare that every man who ever owned a negro ought to have his heart-strings cut out; and retail Statesmen, like WILSON and KELLY, can travel over the country, inflaming and exasperating the negroes, and doing their utmost to create a war of races. The New York Journal of Commerce, struck with the villainy of the thing, forcibly says:

"This is not exactly free speech. On the contrary, it is a very un-American sort of proceeding. What can be more ridiculous than to style this state of things 'freedom' in any sense of the word. It is not even probable that northern politicians holding views counter to those of Senator Wilson, should go down to the south and address the people. They would undoubtedly be suppressed with summary proceedings. The consequence of this is plain. The southern country is, by military power, made free to only one class of politicians, and the first great result of the military reconstruction bill is to launch on the poor southerners a flood of men advocating one set of views, while their opponents are excluded by the military commanders. The south is reconstructed into a form of government once detested by the good sense of every good American, and the sad spectacle is offered to the world of a 'free people' using military power for the propagandism of one shade of principles while it uses the same power to suppress the advocacy of any other shade."

It would have been in better taste for the Wilsons, and men of that sort, when they heard that Gov. Jenkins was forbidden to address the people on his side of the question, to withdraw from their crusade and decline to appear as advocates of liberty which was confined to themselves only. It should be mortifying to such men to find themselves placed in such a ridiculous position, for which no one can have any respect.

The Louisville Courier says, in regard to these itinerants:

We have now to say that every liberty-loving man must regret the necessity the southern people are under of tolerating the seditious and revolutionary harangues of the Jacobin emissaries now engaged in attempting to inaugurate a war of races. The enforcement of certain salutary laws of the southern states in the olden time would, if practicable, be eminently proper in the case of these inciters of strife, sedition and revolution. Shackled as the southern people are by the chains of an unrelenting despotism, all they can do is to look, with as much calmness as they can summon to their aid, upon the measures taken by the radicals against their peace and welfare. They are not even allowed the privilege of criticising the speeches of the yankee demagogues, as the interference of Gen. Scofield with the Richmond Times for its ridicule of Wilson's speech shows. The radicals have destroyed freedom of speech and of the press at the south, and they will do the same thing whenever and wherever they have the power.

Those who are engaged in haranguing the negroes, in order to place them in antagonism to the people among whom they have always lived, and to whom they must look for employment, must know, for they are not fools, that they are thus making collisions and riots inevitable, all the blame of which, they quite as well know, will, justly or unjustly, be cast upon the whites. It is not uncharitable to believe, as we do believe, that they desire that these disturbances should occur, in order that the total suppression of freedom of speech and of the press may seem to be justified, and that the party in favor of confiscation may be recruited. Foolish and rash men cannot more completely play into their hands, than by allowing themselves to be provoked into the commission of acts of violence, that will bring upon the heads, not of themselves, but of those who wholly condemn their rashness, the most terrible consequences.

It is true that the right of free speech cannot be pleaded in justification of such harangues as have been made, here and elsewhere, to an ignorant and unreasoning race, drunk with a sudden freedom, and drunker still with the right of suffrage, to exercise which they are totally unfitted. Think only of JOHN W. FORNEY, in his speech to a colored delegation which waited upon him just before he sailed for Europe, saying:

"I believe the day is coming, and that it is not far distant, when, from the state of South Carolina, there will be in the halls of congress a black man, abler than John C. Calhoun ever was, and that there will go from the state of Kentucky, at least as able a black man as Henry Clay."

Of course, he believes nothing of the kind; but he knew the mischievous effects of such balderdash on creatures whose brains are already addled by excitement, and therefore he said it. Nobody, under any plea of the right of free speech, has a right to mislead the ignorant, to inflame the passions of a race in which the animal predominates, to endeavor to array them in hostility to the higher race among whom they live. But we cannot help it. We must even let the tide have its way. There is no folly so great as an impotent anger. To interfere with one of these loquacious mischief-makers only makes them more mischievous, and infinitely increases, instead of diminishing, their power for evil.

DESTITUTION OF THE SOUTH.

A travelling correspondent of the Baltimore Sun writes:

"Between Montgomery and Atlanta I have seen people selling their bedding for corn. The destitution in Alabama is as great now as at the surrender—daily rations are served to sixty thousand of the most needy. In addition, there are about 20,000 who are on the verge of distress. Counties refuse to pay the transportation of the corn furnished, and order the agents to sell part of the foreign charity for the purpose."

The people of the North ought not to be allowed to forget that the chief cause of the destitution of a large portion of the South is to be found in the atrocious conduct of the Federal armies, in utter violation of the rules of civilized warfare: in their wide-spread destruction of private property of non-combatants, in their burning of granaries, in their devastation of farms, in their combustion of implements of agriculture, for the express purpose of preventing the cultivation of the soil, and producing starvation. The distress of our people is, in a great measure, not a legitimate consequence of the war, but of the crimes of the officers and men of the Federal armies. The merciful and generous among their people may well be ashamed of the inhumanity of Scalawagton and Cincinnati, and the pitiful alms superciliously given by some other cities. New York, even, greedy as she is of the Southern trade, has not done a tenth part of what she should have done, to relieve the distresses of women and children of the same blood with her own people. Blood thicker than water! Bah! It is a lie!

The Buntyn
HOMESTEAD LANDS FOR SALE.
WE have the pleasure of placing on the market those very desirable and valuable lands, so well known to the community as the Homestead Tract of the late Geraldus Buntyn, Esq., situated at the first station on the Memphis and Charleston railroad, [illegible] miles east of the city. The improvements, with about twenty acres of land, have been recently sold to Hume F. Hill, Esq., who now resides upon the premises. The balance of the tract, consisting of about 180 acres, has been laid off in lots varying in size from five to ten acres, fronting upon broad avenues, and laid off so as to secure the greatest amount of comfort. The trains of the Memphis and Charleston railroad afford the opportunity of going in and out of the city, from and to Buntyn's Station, four times a day, so as to make a residence at this point almost as convenient as to live in the city itself. The choice can now be had of lots wholly or part in original forest, or in field.

In Exchange for City Property.
The executors are directed by the Will to sell this place and invest in city property, and we will receive propositions to exchange for either improved or vacant lots in the city.
To all parties looking for a suburban residence, we do not think any property more desirable can be found, in regard to health, convenience or good neighborhood, within the same distance from the city.
The terms will be made very liberal and easy, and the prices low to parties desirous of buying for occupation. Plans of the subdivision will be shown at our office.

NO. 1.
THE CHINGARORA
ANTI-NERVOUS
SMOKING TOBACCO!
THE CHINGARORA TOBACCO grows from the rich soil of the "ORIENT," and is possessed of a peculiarly delicious flavor entirely unknown to the tobaccos of all other climes. But its unprecedented popularity has sprung from the fact of the entire absence of that deadly poison Nicotin, which permeates every other tobacco, and which is the one and sole cause of the distressing nervous diseases, dyspepsia, etc., which most invariably, sooner or later, follow the indulgence of the pipe and cigar. At the recent analyzation of tobacco from all parts of the world, at the Academy of Sciences, in Paris, the renowned chemist, M. Lamoureaux, declared that while European and American tobacco contained fully eight per cent., and the purest Havana tobacco from two to five per cent of Nicotin, the CHINGARORA did not contain one discoverable particle of that deadly poison, a drop of which, extracted, will destroy life.
Our agent at BOMBAY has shipped us large quantities of the CHINGARORA during the past two years, and although we have been pressed to supply the demand for this delicious luxury to the veteran smoker, yet we are now prepared to offer it in unlimited quantities, at a price much lower than some American tobacco of a far inferior quality.
A connoisseur has but to smoke the American tobacco and cigars, which are invariably chemically flavored, to be disgusted with the medicinal taste which leaves a nauseous, unhealthy coating in the mouth, and in time seldom fails to shatter the nervous system.
The natives of the "ORIENT" smoke the CHINGARORA from morn till night, from youth to age, and are happily unconscious of the wild, distressing nerve which courses through the veins of the inhaler of the fumes of tobacco containing Nicotin.
We invite every lover of the weed to try the CHINGARORA, and guarantee unprecedented pleasure in its delicious flavor.
Sold everywhere at $1 a pound.

WANTED—THE PATENT

AURORA OIL.

We want men everywhere to study their own INTEREST. The right to manufacture and sell the Patent Aurora Oil in a single county will make more money to the purchaser in three months than the largest farm in your State will make in a whole year. The Aurora Oil actually costs less than one-half the price of Coal Oil, and the illuminating power of the Aurora Oil is as much superior to the Coal Oil as the Coal Oil is to a tallow candle, and is NO MORE explosive than a tallow candle. Any Lamp that will burn Coal Oil will burn the Aurora Oil. It does not smoke the chimney—it does not smell—it will not grease or stain the finest linen—not even white cloth. The material for its manufacture is inexhaustible. One man can make seventy-five barrels per day. No machinery required. We will pay your fare to and from the city of Memphis and bills while here, if we cannot prove all, and even more, than we have stated. A single county is a small fortune to the man of enterprise, and the right to a State is untold worth.

GRACE CHURCH FAIR.—The attendance at the Greenlaw Hall last night was large and fashionable. Many brave knights and fair women graced the scene with their presence. The floral table of Miss Mary Hogan deserves especial notice. The postoffice is doing a thriving business, and all goes merry as a marriage bell. We hope the noble christian ladies engaged in this work, may succeed in their undertaking. It should not be forgotten that a grand lunch is set daily from eleven till two, and tableaux nightly.

EMMONS & SON, No. 10 Jefferson street, have received the Art Journal for May, containing, like the April number, more than one hundred fine engravings, representing articles on exhibition at the Paris exposition. Persons who cannot attend the exhibition itself should subscribe at once for the Art Journal, and secure the reproduction of the finest specimens of art and skill in the world. Price, $1 50 per number, payable on delivery of the magazine.

ANOTHER LOTTERY.—We have before us a ticket entitled "Grace Church Lottery." "The holder of this ticket is entitled to admission and a chance in the first drawing of the lottery." Whether the operations of the Southern Asylum have brought about this utilization of chance, in the promotion of laudable enterprises, we know not. It is true, however, that the purposes of the Southern Asylum land lottery are everywhere commended. It has fortunately happened that an absolute fixed list of property to be distributed on the 15th proximo, was not published. In consequence of this fact the cheapest list of city and country property ever offered for sale will be distributed at the first drawing. The quantity of property, thus assessed, will be equal in value to the face value of tickets sold, and for reasons stated, tickets are worth, at least, twenty-five per cent more than if an absolute and unchangeable list and scheme had been published when the company began its operations. A home for five dollars may be won—Mrs. Margaret Doyle's lots in the suburbs will very certainly constitute a part of the property distributed.

TRIAL OF THE PATENT CHEMICAL FIRE EXTINGUISHER.—Messrs. Perkins, Livingston & Post yesterday afternoon gave a public exhibition of the practical merits of their valuable invention, on the bluff, in front of the head of Madison street, which proved highly satisfactory to those present, the time occupied in extinguishing a pile of tar barrels under a stormy fire not exceeding one minute. Col. S. B. Beaumont, Miles Merryweather, John E. Randle, chief of fire department, Col. John L Chandler, Wm. Kehoe, captain engine No. 1, A. J. Hopper, James Dolan, engineer of engine 4, Jos. Heske, engineer engine No. 1, Capt. Ed. O'Neil, Rueben Daley, Julius C. Holst, M. Burk, Esq., John West, J. B. Stark, Capt. J. B. Signaigo, engine No. 3, Capt. Wm. McFadden, engine No. 4 were appointed a committee to judge of the merits of the above. After several successful trials, the committee adjourned to the office of Col. Beaumont. On motion, M. Burke, Esq., was called to the chair, and Reuben Dailey chosen secretary. Mr. J. E. Randle offered the following preamble and resolution:

WHEREAS, Messrs. Perkins, Livingston & Post claim a practical superiority and current utility of their fire extinguisher over the usual method of extinguishing fires in their incipient state, both as to its capability of being kept convenient and its adaptability for use by a single person, and the small quantity required for the purpose, thereby saving a great deal of damage that otherwise occurs from water; therefore be it

Resolved, That from the experiment which we have witnessed this afternoon, we are satisfied that this invention is fully capable of and entirely practicable for the purposes claimed.

Adopted unanimously.

Moved and adopted that this committee do earnestly recommend the use of this extinguisher in stores, warehouses, hotels and steamboats, as a sure means of extinguishing fires wherever water is not immediately available, especially in the second, third, fourth and fifth stories, and in cellars.

M. BURK, Chairman.

THE ALBERT PEARCE DISASTR.

Particulars of the Occurrence—Extent of the Loss.

Yesterday we mentioned the loss of the steamer Albert Pearce near Lake Providence, furnishing a few particulars of the disaster. Since then we have been able to obtain a few additional facts. The Albert Pearce left St. Louis for New Orleans on the 15th, and at the time of the disaster had on board about 450 tons of freight. Sunday night was quite stormy, and the roughness of the river compelled the officers to land the boat several times. At eleven o'clock a landing was made at Duncan's, four miles above Lake Providence, on the Mississippi side, and some freight put ashore. At one o'clock in the morning, while still at the landing, fire was discovered by the watchman on the larboard side, near the wash-house. It is supposed to have ignited from a lamp. The flames spread with great rapidity. The alarm was immediately given to the passengers, and in a few moments all were ashore. Every effort was made to save the boat, but the fire had attained too great headway to be extinguished. Her freight consisted of about 5000 sacks corn, 150 barrels pork, 700 barrels meal and flour, and other miscellaneous freight. Her books and papers were all lost. About two hundred dollars were saved from the safe. Capt. Ashford and the crew came up on the Mississippi, and a protest was entered in this city.

AT A MEETING of the committee appointed to draft resolutions expressive of the sentiments of the managers of the Leath orphan asylum, the following was adopted:

WHEREAS, It has pleased our Heavenly Father, in His wise providence, to remove from our midst, and from her sphere of usefulness, our highly esteemed sister and co-worker, Mrs. Sallie H. Dixon; and whereas, the Leath orphan asylum has, by her decease, lost a true friend and patron, society a brilliant ornament and the church a pure and faithful member, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we bow with humble submission to the divine will of "Him who doeth all things well," and feel that our dear sister, having finished her work on earth, has gone to see the "King in His beauty," to behold the land afar off, where, clad in her snow-white garments, she stands among the countless throng, and to the melody of her golden harp, she sings the song of the redeemed.

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with the bereaved husband and relatives of the deceased, in this their great affliction, but say to them "weep not for her, who fearless the laws of Christ—whose dying couch was surrounded by smiling cherubs, whose wants on earth she had relieved, and who, mingling in the train of pure and spotless charity, bore her spirit to our Father's throne, there to receive a crown of endless glory.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our society, and printed in the Memphis APPEAL, Avalanche and Christian Advocate, and that a copy be sent to the husband and relatives of our deceased sister.

MEMPHIS, May 22, 1867.

THE GRAND TOURNAMENT.

A Perfect Success—At Least Ten Thousand People Present.

A Large Portion of the Business Houses Closed and a Grand Gala Day Generally.

To say that the tournament, held at the Memphis trotting park yesterday, was a success is not enough. It was immense—the crowd of fair women and brave men assembled being one of the largest assemblies we have seen congregated since the surrender. About half past nine o'clock the contestant knights assembled on the east side of Court square in costume, and in charge of the marshal of the day, N. E. Hughes, Esq., (aided by his assistants), proceeded to the race track. On entering the ground the knights were called before the stand, when the orator of the day, Hon. W. T. Avery, was introduced, and spoke as follows:

Mr. President, Sir Knights, and you, Ladies and Gentlemen composing this vast concourse of people:

When I remember that the position I now occupy, was upon your last occasion of the sort, graced by one of Tennessee's most gifted and captivating orators, I am disposed to shrink from my present undertaking. Nor would I have ventured upon it at all but for the noble objects which prompt this pageant, and the solicitude of a few partial friends, who have urged me to the task. I will promise you, however, in the outset, that I will detain you but a little while from the more interesting exercises of the day, which are soon to follow. And another thing I will promise you, and that is, that I will not put any politics in my speech. For we reconstructed rebels, who, as the doctors would say, "healed by the first intention," and who made such haste, upon all occasions, both in writing and in speech, to "accept the situation," are beginning to discover by this time, that by this they did not make the situation accept us; but, on the contrary, it accepted "them other people" and excepted us. And if any aspiring politician of the rebel persuasion has launched his reconstructed bark upon these new and unnavigated waters, with the lingering hope that it will ere long be borne again into the peaceful harbor of political tranquility and popular preferment I think he will be doomed to disappointment. The political gulf stream will not soon drift it in that direction.

Some five hundred years ago, a century or so before the great navigator discovered the continent upon which we live, there was an age of chivalry. An age memorable as well for its warlike achievements, as for its many instances of individual prowess; when the noblest deeds of daring were performed; when brave men prided themselves upon the accomplishment of the most brilliant actions of courage and of virtue, war was the trade of the people of the times, and tilts and tournaments their pastime. All the world was persuaded then, and acted upon the principle that love was the incentive to these deeds of daring. Gallant knights made brilliant parade of it in their tournaments, and warriors exposed themselves to the most perilous combats to maintain the honor and beauty of their ladies. It was then thought, however, that love might be confined to a delicate intercourse of gallantry and tenderness. And the bold and ambitious youth sought by these daring means to propitiate the favor of the fair.

Although the idea of the tournament of to-day has come down to us through long ages from the knighthood and chivalry of the times of which I speak, yet the motives, the objects and the results are far different. I have already intimated that the knight of the olden time was pushed on to his profession of arms, and to his championship of knighthood, because his excellence in these manly accomplishments alone placed him high up in the scale of female admiration, and especially in the admiration of his chosen lady love. It was alone by these gladiatorial feats of prowess that he could hope to woo or win her favor. The matrons and maidens of the time demanded of their lords these perilous proofs of their valor and of their devotion. These were their high passports as well to popular favor as to woman's love. We live in a different age. No such tests are now needed nor demanded. Many of you—nay most, if not all of you, have made abundant proof of your prowess on field where something more was at stake than the mere championship at arms. Woman the world over has ever held in high esteem virtue and bravery. And nowhere in all the earth is accorded to these noble and manly qualities of human character a juster and a truer tribute; and is yielded to them a deeper and a holier devotion, than is by the blessed women of this our southern land. In proof: A few days ago, when the first flowers of spring had burst through the crustlings of their wintry beds, we saw in yonder cemetery, these, the earliest offerings of the season, bestowed by a thousand fair and lovely hands upon the soldiers' graves. And upon that same day, at that same consecrated hour, throughout this broad land of sorrow and grief, wherever a dead hero slept, and the foot of woman could find his resting place, were besprinkled by a million hands, these same mute but eloquent and expressive emblems of womanly devotion. Oh! how beautiful the thought, how touching the ceremony. So let it be forever each returning spring time.

These were not offerings upon the crumbled altars of ancient chivalry, nor were they prompted by those impulses which would move the heart of the fair maiden of five centuries ago to bedeck the brow of her champion knight with choicest flowers; but they were the purest tributes of true woman's sorrow stricken heart upon the graves of solid soldiers, who fell fighting for a cause, though lost, they believed to be right, and for principles they deemed as undying and eternal as the everlasting hills. But they whose bones lie buried and scattered upon a thousand battlefields, no government to gather them together in national cemeteries and build mosoleums to their memories, no flowers can ever bedeck their graves. They will sleep on, with nothing to mark their resting place, until the last grand reveille of recorded time shall summon them from their soldier graves unto the dread morning of the resurrection.

But there were qualities of those warlike and chivalrous people of these past ages, which might well challenge the emulation of the conquering nations of more modern times. Amongst these qualities I might mention their magnanimity to a fallen foe. Brave themselves, they accorded themselves the highest mead of praise to valor, whether found in friend or foe. They paid homage and honor to the true soldier whilst living, and to his memory when dead. Their chivalry was of that lofty character that scorned the oppression of a brave though conquered enemy. And the greater the valor of the vanquished, the more magnanimous the conduct of the conqueror. They let no fitting opportunity pass of expressing this high devotion to the character of the brave. They would themselves bestrew the graves of a valiant foe with flowers, and bid their living friends cherish forever the memory of their virtues and their valor. Why, after the battle of Poictiers, one of the bloodiest and hardest fought of that age, when the prince of Wales had vanquished John, the king of France, and taken captive him and all his cohorts, he spread for them a magnificent feast in compliment to their bravery, and lavished upon them the most delicate attentions. And when they were transported prisoners of war across the water to England the delicate idea suggested itself and was carried out of giving the king a ship to himself, that he might the more be at his ease and comfort. And when arrived in England great homage and honor were paid them everywhere. They were met more like conquerors than the conquered. The king and queen of England themselves frequently visited this, their captive king, in the castle which had been assigned him for his abode, to comfort and cheer him. No forts, no prison walls, no insolent guard, no manacles, but free under his parole of honor to seek in all England his comfort and his pleasure. They would have scorned, even in those mediæval ages, the oppression of a prostrate people, of a proud though vanquished prisoner.

May I not be pardoned, in the presence of this vast multitude, to-day, for departing for a moment or two from the historic paths of chivalry and knighthood, which it might be more pleasing, if not more profitable to pursue, to vouchsafe a few reflections of a practical character, which may tend to be useful? Although this land of ours, the land we love, is scathed and scarred, and covered all over with the "ruins of the fall," yet it is our land still. It is our own heritage, our home, our all. It is the land of our fathers, and will be that of our children. To the noble task, then, of rebuilding her ruins, of re-establishing this country upon the sure foundation of prosperity and happiness, let young and old direct themselves; for, as that sweetest of poets (a Tennessee poet, too), Father Ryan, the author of the "Conquered Banner," most beautifully says:

"A land without ruins is a land without memories; a land without memories is a land without liberty; a land that wears the laurel crown may be fair to see; but twine a few sad cypress leaves around the brow of any land; and be that land barren, beautiless and bleak, it becomes lovely in its consecrated coronet of sorrow. Crowns of roses fade; crowns of thorns endure. Calvaries and crucifixions take deepest hold on humanity. The triumphs of might are transient, they pass and are forgotten—the sufferings of right are graven deepest on the chronicles of nations."

Hung, then, all over with cypress is our land. Were it "barren, beautiless and bleak," it would still, in the touching language I have just repeated, "become lovely in its consecrated coronet of sorrow." How much the more lovely, how doubly lovely then to us not barren, not beautiless, not bleak, but in all the gifts of nature the fairest and brightest under the sun. The like of it is no where to be found upon the earth. Its soil of unsurpassing fertility; its climate healthful, invigorating, salubrious; its productions as varied as there are seeds to be planted; its rock ribbed mountains rich in all the vast treasures of the earth. God Almighty, in the plentitude of his power, and the boundless munificence of his benefaction has lavished upon this land his choicest and most bounteous gifts. Oh! should we not struggle hard to cherish, revivify and rehabitate a land like this? Let no one then think of leaving it to hunt a better; my word for it, they will never find it. Those who have wondered into distant climes with the vain hope of doing so, sooner or later return satisfied that after all it is the best of all. And it is the best of all—crushed though it be beneath the iron heel of despotic power, it is still the best. The trident of oppression will one day fall from the palsied arm and withered grasp of power. Let us stick to it then through thick and thin. Encourage immigration rather than emigration. It can again be made to bloom and blossom brighter and better than before. Some may say how?

I answer, in the first place, by making ourselves independent. By going to work in earnest, and raising within ourselves everything we want to eat and wear, and let cotton alone.

How was it during the war? Notwithstanding every able-bodied man was in the army (or supposed to be), yet there was plenty of provisions raised in the south to feed, and almost clothe, the army and the people. And why? Because the whole agricultural energies of the country were directed to raising food and clothing; and the only reason there ever was any scarcity of provisions, either among the people or in the army, was the want of transportation. Why, I have myself seen mountains of corn actually rotting because it could not be carried away. Why is it, now that transportation is everywhere untrammeled, and the army broken up and at home, and at work for two years, that in many portions of the country we hear the cry of want and famine? Even the very Egypts of the land, that then groaned with wasting corn, cannot now feed their starving stock. It is simply because to the utter neglect of raising something to eat, the whole country has everywhere pursued the ignus fatuus of cotton. How could we prosper? How could any people prosper, pursuing this fatal policy? Buying every pound of meat, every bushel of corn, every barrel of flour, every horse, mule, cow, hog, sheep, every implement of husbandry, everything that we eat, wear and use, and that, too, at the most exhorbitant prices when we have a country and material capable of producing them all as well as any in the world. It will never do. This policy must be changed, and I am glad to see a manifest disposition to do so. May not the calamitous floods which have so recently deluged the fairest and most fertile fields of all the south, be blessings in disguise to give wiser direction to the agricultural labor of the country?

But upon the youth of the land, those whose political "transgressions" have not worked their everlasting political excommunication, will mainly devolve the high duty and rest the vast responsibility of lifting up this prostrate land of ours and placing it again upon the proud eminence of prosperity and happiness. It is to the rising generation, to you, young men, who are to give future conduct and control to the government and direction and shape to her laws, her institutions and her liberty, that the country must look. Never before in the wide range of the history of parties and of the country and of the world did such mighty responsibility rest upon the coming men, nothing more nor less than the redemption of their country; her restoration to all those moral, physical and political relations to which she has so high a claim and so just a title; to breathe into her new life, and put her again upon a new career of material prosperity—a mighty work for the young and for the old, but especially for the young.

I am proud to say that never before in the history of any country was the trade of war so suddenly turned into the peaceful pursuits of every day life with so little demoralization upon the part of the young men of the country. Everywhere they went to work like men, with but little or no taint of the evils of the camp, or the vicious influences of a soldier's life. The better the soldier the more obedient to the law the citizen. It gives great earnest of their capacity for useful citizenship, and of their ability and determination to direct aright the ultimate destinies of their country.

And whilst it is both pleasing and profitable to forget for a while the eager pursuits of business, and the fretful cares of life, and devote a day to these pleasant pastimes—these manly and interesting sports—especially when their objects are so laudable and their results so harmless—let us not lose sight of the great duties which lie before, to which I have but barely alluded. The building up the waste places of our country. The development of her vast and varied resources. The propping up and cementing together again the crumbling pillars of her constitution. The rekindling again those vestal fires which have so well nigh died out on the sacred altars of civil liberty. In a word, to bid her rise in her majesty and beauty, and make her what the great God intended she should be, not only to herself but to the nations of the earth.

And now most gallant knights, you will proceed to dispute with each other the palm, and for the prizes, in the noble and manly sports in which you are about to engage, and for the still higher guerdon of decking the brow of beauty. And I know that you will remember that many a fair maiden's heart beats quick and high for the success of her chosen knight, and leaps responsive to your own in your championship of to-day.

According to arrangement the tilting then commenced, with the following results:

Mr. A. P. Montana was awarded the first prize, Capt. W. D. Stratton making the announcement, which was received by the assembly with rounds of applause.

Messrs. Cross and McKie having tried for the second prize, they made another tilt, when the knight of the White Plume proved successful.

For the third prize, Messrs. Tinly and Wilson were the contestants, the latter coming out the winner.

The queen of love and beauty, Miss Alice Hall, was named by the successful knight, who represented the missing ears.

The knight of the White Plume named Miss Ella Ward as the first maid of honor. The knight of the Released Chief named Miss Mollie Campbell second maid. Knight of the Black Eyed Lassie named Miss Bettie Carter third maid. The Forrest knight of the Fourteenth Regiment named Miss Annie Taylor as fourth maid. Knight of Don't You See Me named Miss Ella Bayliss as fifth maid, and the knight of H. Z. C. named Miss Maggie Rembart as the sixth maid. The queen was then crowned, and her maids, all of whom bore their honors as become southern maidens. Miss Annie Plummer, formerly of Memphis, but now of Somerville, was crowned queen of May. Although it is said "that uneasy lies the head that wears a crown," if we can judge from appearances, this fair and beautiful daughter of Tennessee cannot fail to make everything around her pleasant and joyous. The judges for the most graceful riding were Miss Hall Rodgers, Miss Iris Cooper, Miss Anna Plummer, Miss Lou. Rayner, Miss Katie Worsham, Miss Julia Rudolph. The knight of the Gray Jacket, O. E. Bayliss, was awarded the prize, a splendid silver pitcher, which he gracefully presented to the Queen of May. Col. Green P. Foute awarded the premiums in appropriate speeches, which the want of space precludes us from publishing. Gen. N. B. Forrest, who took an active part in the exercises of the day, on behalf of the committee of arrangements, returned thanks to the patrons of the tournament, and hoped that the charitable feeling for the widows and orphans would ever exist amongst all present.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.—On Monday afternoon, about half-past three o'clock, Mr. Daniel M. Stephens, of Jackson, Tenn., a brother of Col. Wm. H. Stephens, of Bolivar, left the Gayoso house in a hack for the Memphis and Ohio railroad depot, since when nothing has been heard of him. His friends are very uneasy about him, as it is feared he has been foully dealt with. Any information regarding him left at the telegraph office will be thankfully received. Mr. Stephens was a delegate to the late Episcopal convention.

THE BAPTIST FAIR.—The attendance last night was quite large, and the interest is increasing. Those who desire a pleasant evening can find it at the Tabernacle. The riding whip for the best rider among the tournament knights, was voted to Mr. Geo. Gibbs. Admiral Semmes made the presentation address. The fair will be continued to-night.

The Subjects of Missions and Education Brought Up.

SIXTH DAY.

MORNING SESSION.

The Assembly was called to order at 8½ a.m. yesterday. The roll was called, and after a half hour devoted to religious exercises, the regular order of business was proceeded with.

Leave of absence was granted Revs. A. C. Evans and T. B. Gardner. Rev. Mr. Cooper's alternate, Mr. J. W. Morrow took his seat.

Rev. Dr. McDonald submitted the following report, which was concurred in:

The Trustees of Cumberland University at Lebanon, Tenn., to the General Assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church to convene at Memphis in May, 1867:

The charter of Cumberland University provides that a majority of the Trustees shall be members of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. To secure this object, also with greater certainty, it further provides that when vacancies occur in the ward, the appointment of new members shall be reported to the General Assembly for confirmation. Several changes have taken place, occasioned by death and removals. The names of the new members are reported, and the assembly is respectfully requested to confirm the appointments made by the ward, to-wit: T. C. Anderson, D.D., late president of the faculty; Andrew B. Martin, Benjamin J. Farrier, lawyers and graduates of the institution, and Edward Donaho, M. D. Dr. Donaho is not a member of any church. Mr. Farrier is a Methodist, and was appointed to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of the late Gen. Hatton. The old members of the ward are Hon. R. L. Caruthers, president; J. S. McCane, secretary; M. McCarkle, M. D.; Capt. J. W. White and Maj. W. H. Williamson, all members of the Cumberland presbyterian church. All the members of the board are zealous friends of the college, and are determined, with the co-operation and assistance of the church, to make the university a first class institution—and indications are favorable to success. All the departments are being successfully taught by the best instructors, and other professors will be elected as fast as the necessities of the university require their services. Good buildings for recitation rooms have been and will be provided until the new edifice can be erected.

The present faculty consists of B. W. McDonald, D D., President; R. Beard, D.D., Professor of Ancient Languages; E. W. Burney, A.M., Assistant Professor of Ancient Languages; Gen. A. P. Stewart, A.M., Professor of Mathematics; H. S. Kennedy, A.M., Principal of English School; A. H. Buchanan, A.M., Professor of Civil Engineering; A. J. Finney, Assistant English Instructor; Julius Blau, Professor of Modern Languages.

Law Faculty.—Hon. R. Le Caruthers, Hon. Henry Cooper and N. Green, L. B. The two last named perform the duties or instruct all the classes at present.

All the departments are doing well, with a respectable number of students.

Respectfully submitted with seal of University. J. S. McLAIN, Secretary.

On motion (the special order having arrived) the minutes of the last assembly were read relative to the question of raising a contingent fund, in which it is provided that it shall be the duty of the stated clerk to ascertain the number of commissioners entitled to seats in the assembly, the distance to be traveled by each, the number of communicants in each Presbytery, and the necessary amount to be assessed on each, in order to raise said fund, and thereby equalize the expenses of representation in the assembly falling upon the several Presbyteries.

This evoked considerable discussion, participated in by Messrs. Ransom, Lorimer, Ritchey, Rolston, Renick, Malloy, Crissman and Baird. It was finally tabled by a vote of seventy-six to sixty-three.

The conclusion of an elaborate report on ministerial installation was read by Rev. Dr. Bird. On motion of the Rev. Mr. Ransom, it was laid on the table until after the reception of the report of the Committee on Overtures.

Rev. Mr. Anderson submitted an important report on Missions, which the crowded condition of our columns prevents us from publishing entire. During the year the whole amount raised by all the Boards was nine thousand two hundred and eighty-nine dollars and fifteen cents, ($9289 15), as follows: Alton Board, $4793 50; California, $2855 15; Lebanon, $1651 50.

The Committee recommends that every congregation have a time set apart to give; if they cannot give monthly, let them give every other month, or at least quarterly. To educate the Church to systematic giving is the thing most needed by the Church, next to vital piety. They also urge upon all the congregations to observe the anniversary of the Church, as heretofore recommended by former General Assemblies, taking collections for this purpose, in connection with other suitable religious exercises.

Of the Colored Missions the Committee says:

Your committee regard the subject of the moral and religious training of the colored people of the whole country, and especially that large class lately emancipated in the Southern States, as of the most vital importance to both races, but especially to the colored race. It is now patent that these people are to be a permanent element in the population of the country, and in whatever way we regard them, they are necessarily dependent upon the Christian people of the States for whatever facilities they may have for mental or religious culture, and the Church of Christ owes it to them as a part of the fallen race of man, ignorant, depraved and degraded, to supply and afford them the means of grace as far as possible—the fellow-heirs of a common salvation. We would strongly recommend all our Presbyteries, in the lands of which these colored people reside, to adopt the best possible plans at the earliest practicable moment that may be in their power, to supply this large class of our fellow beings with the bread and water of life. And we recommend, and would urge, all our people of the laity in the south, to seek out the communities of the freedmen that may be most accessible and most destitute, and form Sunday schools and hold prayer meetings among them; furnish them, as far as may be, with good books and papers, and especially the word of God. Great good may be accomplished in this way, even in the absence of regular preaching. Let Presbyteries encourage colored young men of some piety and suitable gifts to prepare for the ministry as speedily as possible. Let our Boards of Missions consult together and adopt the best possible methods which to them may seem best calculated to secure the spiritual grace of the colored population among us. Cumberland Presbyterians have a part to act in the great work of their evangelization and elevation in the scale of moral and spiritual well being; and their geographical and religious stand point enables them to have easy access to them, and to labor as successfully with them as any other Christian people in the whole country.

This report was made the special order for 10 a.m. to-day.

Rev. Mr. Chaddick, chairman, submitted a report on Overture No. 1, which was concurred in.

On motion, the report on Ministerial Installation and Church Covenant was referred to the committee contemplated in the foregoing.

Rev. Mr. Ralston, chairman of the Committee on Judiciary, reported favorably on a number of papers. Concurred in.

The following, submitted by Rev. Dr. McDonald, was also concurred in:

Your committee beg leave to submit the following report, viz: They have had the whole educational work of the church under consideration, and have found unmistakable evidence of great zeal for this vital interest.

Cumberland University, at Lebanon, Tenn., has better prospects than it ever had before the war.

Lincoln University, Lincoln, Ill., has considerable endowment and good prospects.

Cumberland Female College, at McMinnville, Tenn., has good patronage.

Donnell Female College is doing well.

Union Female College has five buildings and good prospects.

Steelville Academy, Missouri, has a fine patronage.

Rev. W. E. Ward's Seminary, Nashville, has near 300 pupils.

Missouri Female College is prospering.

To go into details of what all these institutions are doing would make our report too long, and we refer those who want special information on these subjects to the several Synodical minutes.

Besides these institutions there are various others from which we have no definite report.

We report also that the red men have not been neglected. Burney academy, among the Chickasaws, was kept up through the whole war, and its teachers exhibited a heroism under trials that is worthy of our highest admiration. The Choctaw nation has various Cumberland Presbyterian schools, and besides this it is educating eleven Choctaw boys at Cumberland universities and seven Choctaw girls at Cumberland female colleges.

As to the education of the black people, serious embarrassments are still in the way. Churches near these people are so impoverished that they cannot help in this matter as they would like to do. We recommend, therefore, that in carrying out the resolutions of the last general assembly, all your churches be requested to aid in this work, and that whatever is done therein be carried on through the joint action of the missionary boards of Alton and Lebanon, together with such agencies as they may appoint.

We recommend, also, in view of the present circumstances of our people, that you advise the church to co-operate so as to secure concentration upon only a few colleges, so located as best to subserve the interests of the whole church.

Respectfully submitted.

B. W. McDONNALD, Chairman.

Adjourned until 3 p.m.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Assembly met at 3 o'clock p.m., pursuant to adjournment. The calling of the roll was dispensed with.

In the absence of the Chairman, Dr. A. J. Baird, the Rev. Mr. Ashmour, from the Committee on Sabbath Schools, made an elaborate report representing the establishment of classes among the freedmen, and urging the Cumberland Presbyterian Church to renewed interest in that important matter. The report was concurred in, on motion of Rev. Mr. Larimor.

Rev. Mr. Strain, on behalf of the Committee on the State of Religion, reported insufficient data whereon to base a full report. However, he read a report couched in general terms, in which the Assembly concurred.

The Committee on Overtures, through the Chairman, Rev. Mr. Chaddick, submitted a report upon overture No. 2, relative to the form of Church government. Concurred in.

Rev. Mr. Woods announced the reception of no minutes from the West Tennessee Synod, for the examination of which a committee has been appointed.

Rev. Mr. Rea reported favorably upon the minutes of the Pennsylvania Synod, excepting a memorial therein included. Upon the memorial above alluded to, a special committee, through the chairman, Rev. Dr. McDonald, submitted the following preamble and resolutions:

WHEREAS, There exists some doubt about the bearing of the last General Assembly's utterances on those of former Assemblies on the subject of slavery and rebellion; therefore

Resolved, That while the decisions of the General Assembly are of high authority, they cannot become a law binding on all the churches so as to set up a test of church membership, unless they are referred to the Presbyteries and there appealed, hence such decisions of the Assembly are not subjects of repeal, and the decisions of the last General Assembly did not repeal the decisions of former Assemblies on the subjects above named, nor did they acknowledge their authority, but simply disclaimed all jurisdiction over such questions.

Adopted with but two dissenting voices, and after considerable discussion.

Adjourned until 8½ o'clock this morning.

THE STEAMER R. E. LEE.

Presentation of Colors—An Interesting Occasion.

Yesterday the magnificent steamer Robert E. Lee, which left for New Orleans last evening, was the scene of a most pleasant incident to all concerned. It was the occasion of the presentation to that steamer of the elegant stand of colors voted at the late fair held by the ladies of the First Baptist church. Quite a number of ladies and gentlemen were present. The colors were presented, on behalf of the ladies, by Miss Josie Feger, an accomplished young lady of this city, in the following address:

I have been delegated to-day to represent the ladies of the First baptist church of this city, although I am aware there are many present who would be more competent. To say that it is not a source of pleasure, would be doing injustice to my feelings. The occasion that has brought so many of us together on this beautiful steamer is one that will never be forgotten by any of us. Until to-day many of us were comparative strangers, yet I see so many happy, smiling faces around me, I feel as if we had all been old friends together. I am not personally acquainted with the officers of the Lee, but judging from her beauty, strength, speed, name, and the reputation of her owners, they cannot be other than gentlemen; and here let me assure you, gentlemen, you have many good, substantial friends in this city, I see some of them standing among you. These gentlemen stood by the R. E. Lee in her late contest with the Belle St. Louis, like old veterans determined, like her namesake, to fight it out to the last. But I am not here to eulogize any of you, but for a much more pleasant purpose, that of presenting you with a suite of colors, the gift of your friends and the admirers of your boat; its intrinsic value is small compared with the many happy associations I trust will ever cluster around it. Then, captain, in behalf of the ladies of the First Baptist church of this city, I present you with this suite of colors, the emblems of our country, as a testimonial of our esteem and regard, not alone for yourselves or your noble steamer, but for the name,

"One of the few—the immortal few,
That were not born to die."

There is no name so dear to the southern heart—the name of a hero, a statesman and christian. The full assurance is experienced that this testimonial could not be more suitably conferred. The R. E. Lee is honored in the name she bears, and these colors could not wave over a more magnificent floating palace, or be protected by more careful, provident and meritorious officers. Take them and may they wave over a career of uninterrupted prosperity.

To this, Capt. John W. Cannon, the owner, responded as follows:—In behalf of the officers of the Robert E. Lee and myself, I accept this generous gift, with unalloyed gratification. Permit me to assure the generous donors that these colors shall be duly honored. The object in constructing this boat was to render her in every respect worthy the great name she was to bear, and under no circumstances shall the bright colors here received ever wave over aught aboard that would for a moment blur that proud escutcheon. We return our sincere acknowledgements, and shall studiously endeavor to deserve the elegant present as well as the confidence of the public.

An inquisition taken by the undersigned jurors and W. S. Walton, J. P., in and for Shelby county, acting as coronor, upon the view of the body of Henry Cooper, then and there lying dead, upon the oaths of said jurors, good and lawful men of said county, who being duly sworn to inquire upon the part of the state of Tennessee into all of the circumstances attending the death of the said Henry Cooper, and by whom the same was produced, and in what manner and when and where the said Cooper came to his death, do say upon their oaths as aforesaid that he came to his death by a pistol ball discharged from a pistol in the hands of one, Michael Gallagher, on Jefferson street, city of Memphis, state of Tennessee, on the 19th of May, 1867:

The Aurora Oil.—The introduction of this oil is destined to work a great revolution in the lighting world. It possesses many advantages over all other means of light, from the fact that it is much cheaper than gas or coal oil, is free from any offensive smell, and best of all, non-explosive. We have examined it thoroughly, and without hesitation pronounce it superior to anything extant for the purposes for which it is recommended. It is also superior to turpentine for paints, oils and varnishes. The proprietors, Messrs. H. C. PHYSICIANS.

DR. WM. EVERETT

CAN be found at Rooms No. 5 and 6, Southern House, corner of Main and Beal street, where he is prepared to treat and advise with all ladies having diseases peculiar to their sex. Age and long experience convinces him that all can be relieved, no matter how severe the case, or of how long standing; and above all others he desires those cases which have been

PRONOUNCED INCURABLE.

☞ Diseases of children will also receive especial attention.

BE NOT DECEIVED.—READER, if you have had the misfortune to contract the accursed disease, known as venerial, in any form, you can be cured (I care not in what stage it may present itself, whether primary, secondary or tertiary), without taking one solitary grain of medicine. After ten years of close investigation and practical experience, I am convinced that internal treatment, for the purpose of effecting a permanent cure of syphilitic diseases is useless, and, that in a large proportion of cases, it absolutely does more harm than good. While under my method of external medication, which is pleasant and agreeable to the patient, I defy competition with any other method known to the medical profession, for speedy and permanent cure—which I guarantee in all cases. In making this important fact known to the public, I wish to state that I am a regular practitioner of medicine; that I am a graduate of the Medical Department of the University of Louisville, Ky., and that my method of treating these diseases has cost years of deep study and close observation.

All diseases of the Ear and Eye treated upon the most improved methods.

OFFICE—No. 33 Monroe street, between Main and Second. Respectfully, my8-1m G. W. McLOED, M. D.

DR. C. SPIEGEL, graduate of the best medical schools of Europe and the United States, and member of the principal medical societies in those countries, has practiced medicine in Memphis for the last thirteen years, and continues to offer his professional services to the public, in the treatment of all forms of disease upon the most improved European methods. My vast collections of rare medicines and surgical instruments, with a life-long experience in their administration and use, warrants me in claiming a superiority over the more ordinary method of treating diseases, such as CANCER and TUMORS of every description, which I cure by Constitutional treatment exclusively, no operation performed by the knife. Diseases of the Eye, Ear and Skin, Consumption and Bronchitis, Rheumatism, Neuralgia Scrofula, Syphilis, Stricture, Gleet, Gravel, Piles, Dropsy, Fistula in ane; in short, all Chronic Diseases, giving especial attention to FEMALE DISEASES of every description. I am always ready at all times to consult with first-class Physicians, either by letter or in person, upon all diseases pertaining to medicine and surgery. Medicine sent by express to all parts of the world, when desired.

OFFICE—No. 33, south side Monroe, between Main and Second streets Memphis. Residence, No. 250 Union street. my8 1m Concentration Gives Strength.

DR. F. B. WALTON TENDERS HIS SERVICES to the public in the treatment of the diseases of females. So obscure are many of these, so capricious in their manifestations, so perfectly do they simulate other diseases, that their true character is often overlooked or mistaken; prominent among these are, Neuralgia Dyspepsia, that condition of the system commonly called Nervous or Rheumatic, and General Debility, this last is too often but a symptom of some insidious disease which is sapping the foundations of life. To become expert in the detection of these and skillful in their treatment, requires more labor and research than the general practitioner can bestow. These facts induced him to devote himself to this branch of the profession exclusively. To those interested he would state that he has had the advantage of the best medical schools and extensive hospitals of America; also a practice of more than twenty years in this his native State and in the tropics, where such diseases most abound. He is permitted also to refer to Drs. Pitman and Hopson, gentlemen who stand deservedly high in the profession. Office, No. 354 Main street. Residence, No. 291 Linden street, Memphis, Tenn. my5 1m.

MEMPHIS APPEAL.

For the Memphis Appeal.]

THE OLD LOVE, AND THE NEW.

TO META.

'Tis gone, that passion once so dear,
That hope, so fondly cherished,
Like Autumn's leaf, all brown and sear,
That budded but to perish.

I met her in my early youth,
Before I'd tasted sorrow;
Her soul, I thought, was made of truth,
But little recked I of to-morrow.

The morrow of that hope's now gone
Into the silent, slumbering past;
But with it no fruition come,
A recompense for toil at last.

That soul so fair my fancy made
Out of the earthliest kind of clay;
My trusting heart made what she said
All truth, as bright as Summer day.

I found her false, and from my heart
Tore the last whispering sound of love,
And vowed, though feeling sorrow's smart,
No gloomy misanthrope I'd prove.

I saw you, and the wall of ice
Congealed around this heart of mine
Like necromancer's strange device,
Your sunny face soon made to shine.

Then, drop by drop, it trickled down,
Began at once to fade away.
And now I know myself your own,
Pray tell me, must I bless the day?

Can you, the love of riper years,
The creature by me adored,
Give rest to love-created fears,
And take a heart with passion stored?

A passion such as man may feel
For you, a woman truly loved,
When he with reason's solemn seal
The beauty of your soul has proved.

RIVER MATTERS.

WEATHER AND BUSINESS.

Yesterday was a bright, beautiful day.

Business on the levee was dull, except in front of the Lee. Our boatmen, generally, went to view the gallant knights and ladies fair at the tilting ground, and some of them have determined to enter the lists at the next grand tournament. Among those so willed, we are at liberty to mention Capt. E. A. Levy, Eddy Bourne, Larry Harmstad, W. Jay Johnson, Cook, Shock, Sayres and Crowell.

The Ohio is again about at a stand. The Mississippi at St. Louis is falling. There is no change to report in the rivers of the territory of Arkansas. At this point the river fell twelve inches in the past twenty-four hours.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Yankee passed up with a tow.

The Lee departed for New Orleans with a big trip, having picked up 1000 bales of cotton and a large amount of other freight at this port. The horns worn by the Mollie Able and City of Alton were placed upon her roof before she left. The colors voted to her at the fair were also presented, and were hauled up to her masthead, where they floated until the hour of departure. A full account of the presentation will be found in our local columns.

Our cotemporary of the Bulletin, having heard of the success of Durff in his boot speculation, has invented a glue or paste (out of which he expects to make a pile) for repairing broken vessels. If he can repair the steamer Madison, a vessel now lying at our landing, pretty badly broken, he will receive the thanks of Capt. Johnson and the owners of the boat, besides giving a proof of the efficacy of his "prepared glue."

In our local column will be found further particulars of the loss of the Albert Pearce.

Capt. Ashford will take charge of the Commercial on her next trip, as Capt. Davis starts north to bring out his new packet.

The splendid packet M. S. Mepham, Wood master, will depart for New Orleans and the bends to-day at 5 p.m.

Capt. Haines will back out his packet, the Florence Traber, for all points on the Arkansas river at 5 p.m. to-day.

The Cora S., for Cairo and Louisville, commanded by Capt. Meekin, will leave to-day at 5 p.m.

The steamer W. A. Caldwell, Capt. Woodburn, will leave for Louisville and Cincinnati to-day at 5 p.m.

The low pressure passenger packet Richmond, elegant, safe and swift, will be in port to-day, and leave for Cairo, Evansville and Louisville at 5 p.m. from the city wharfboat. Capt. Neal is master of this splendid packet, and has for his purser the popular and competent Capt. Woolfolk. Passengers won't forget the Richmond, we know.

The popular Belle St. Louis, of which everybody's friend, Capt. Zeigler, is master, will leave for Cairo and St. Louis to-day at 5 p.m. All travelers know the Belle St. Louis, and the elegance of her outfit, as well as that attraction in the office, the incomparable chief clerk, Billy Blenker.

Soundings have been made in the North Atlantic to so great an extent that it is now possible to map out its bed as accurately as the interior of Africa or Australia. This ocean is a long trough of varying depth, extending, probably, from pole to pole. Its bed follows the general structure of the land. Here and there rocky peaks, like that of Teneriffe, or huge mountains of sand, such as the Grand Banks of Newfoundland, reach up to or beyond the surface. Between Ireland and Newfoundland there exists a remarkable plain known as the telegraphic plateau, which is evidently a continuation of the great watershed, which, between latitudes 40 deg. and 80 deg. north, surrounds the earth, and divides the waters flowing north from those flowing south.

Fifty-seven steamboats have been destroyed by accident on the southern rivers since the first of January.

It is said that the wing wall at Renwick's mill, Rock Island, has so changed the current near the bridge that pilots are in doubt how to steer, and hence the numerous accidents this year, the losses at which already reach $100,000.

The fine Northern line steamer Minnesota, bound from St. Paul to St. Louis, collided with the bridge at Clinton on Sunday. She is reported badly damaged, and will have to go on the ways at LeClaire for repairs. The injuries include broken bridgetree, water-wheel beam, etc.

The steamer Trover, bound to Fort Benton, has encountered numerous besetments, accidents and other discouraging occurrences. The boat has been aground several times, has laid up for repairs on five separate occasions, has been on fire three or four times, and has otherwise proved a source of annoyance and vexation. A hand on the boat "broke out" with the smallpox and was disposed of at a cost of $100. A spar fell and broke the leg of another hand, and this one was provided for at a further expense of $150.

The English government is making preparations for a final trial of the relative merits of coal and oil as fuel for generating steam. An ordinary service boiler belonging to a gunboat is first to be tried with coal, at the common rate of combustion, and then forced consumption, to the greatest amount of evaporation the boiler is capable of. The coal grates are then to be taken out and oil grates substituted. The process is to be carried out to its fullest extent, high-super-heated steam and hot air being introduced. Coal and oil will thus be tried for the first time in exactly equal conditions, and the results are anticipated with interest.

An ingenious man in Troy is building a little propeller which has four screws, all located directly under the vessel. The idea of the builder is that the location of the screws under the vessel will give it much greater speed, as at that point the screws operate upon "solid water" alone, and consequently gain additional power and efficiency.

A St. Louis exchange of the 21st says: Another heavy shower last evening; in fact there has fallen so much rain during the past eight days, that low water has been deferred on the upper rivers for the present. There is a splendid stage of water on the upper Mississippi, six feet large on the lower rapids. The Illinois is high, and the Missouri elicits no complaint. Business is still fair. Tonnage is in good supply, a little too much so in the New Orleans trade and that of the Arkansas. The river was falling here yesterday. No change in rates yet announced.

We learn, says the St. Louis Democrat, that a rather curious arrangement is being inaugurated by the Memphis packet company, of making two distinct fields of labor for their pilots. The dividing line will be in the neighborhood of Ste. Genevieve or Cape Girardeau. The packet bound down, upon meeting the one bound up, will, in every instance, exchange pilots, thus confining one-half the number of pilots to the upper part of the route, and the other portion to the lower part. By this arrangement it is clear that a closer acquaintance with the channel will be gained, and consequently a greater immunity from delays by grounding and from collisions with snags and other obstructions.

FINANCIAL.

OFFICE OF THE DAILY APPEAL, MEMPHIS, May 22, 1867.

Money matters were very quiet to-day, with no change in discounts. Gold has advanced to 36c buying. Selling at 37 to 38c.

Silver is offered very sparingly. Buying at 27 to 28c. Selling at 29 to 30c.

City scrip is lower, owing to the large amount of this money which it is expected will be required to pay for improvements now going on upon our streets. Buying at 50 to 52c. Selling at 53 to 54c.

County scrip is dull at 85c buying. Selling at 88 to 90c.

Exchange is in excess of the demand. Eastern sight buying at ¼ to ½ off, and selling at ¼ to ½ premium. New Orleans buying at ½ discount, and selling at par.

A sale of 100 shares of Memphis and Charleston stock is reported on private terms. Other stocks and bonds are dull and nominal at our quotations. Memphis and Ohio railroad bonds, 15 to 20c. Memphis and Little Rock first mortgage bonds, no sale; Memphis and Charleston railroad bonds, 70c; Tennessee bonds, with coupons, 65 to 70c; Tennessee bonds, new, 65 to 70c; Mobile and Ohio railroad bonds, no sale; Memphis city coupons, 55 to 57c; Memphis city railroad stock, 30c.

Uncurrent money is dull with little change in rates to note. Planters' and Union banks have been sold as high as 99c during the week, but there is very little offering. Tennessee bank would, we think, sell in large lots at 36 to 37c, but 35c is all that is offering. In banks of other states there is light transactions.

The printing bureau has completed the 3 per cent. certificates, to take the place of the compound interest notes.

Counterfeit ten dollar bills on the Third National bank of Philadelphia are now in circulation. They are very well executed.

The state treasury of Alabama will soon commence the issue of $400,000, authorized by the last session of the legislature, in $1, $2 and $3 notes. They will be receivable for taxes and for all dues to the state, and are exempted from any tax under the United States revenue law. At first it was reported that the law imposed a tax of 10 per cent. upon such issues by states, as well as those by counties, cities, etc., but state money of this character is free from tax. Without the aid expected from the issuance of this $400,000, it will be difficult for Gov. Patton to protect the state's credit and pay its officials.

It is estimated that the "striking" operatives in Pittsburg have lost $318,500 by their recent experience of three and a half months of idleness.

The capital of the Bank of England has at various periods been as follows: 1694, £1,200,000; 1697, £2,201,000; 1722, £8,959,900; 1782, £11,642,400; 1816, £14,553,000. Since the foundation of the bank, its capital and the loan to the government have been nearly identical in amount. In 1833, however, the debt to the bank was reduced to about £3,500,000. The following are the dates of the several renewals of the charter, with the amount of government debt at each period: 1800, £11,686,800; 1833, £11,015,100; 1844, £11,515,100. The management of the entire public debt of Great Britain is placed in the hands of the Bank of England, for which services it has received compensation which has varied in amount according to circumstances. During the year 1845, this compensation was £92,111 19s. 10d.

The actual debt of the city of New York is $29,143,245; the receipts of the last year $23,736,821, and the amount paid out in the same time was $21,642,641.

COMMERCIAL.

GENERAL BUSINESS.

Our city to-day wore the appearance of the Sabbath. Nearly all our prominent business houses were closed, and their inmates gone to witness the tournament. The streets were deserted, and very little was done in any branch of trade. The day was very properly observed as one of relaxation from labor, and was given up to enjoyment.

COTTON—A further decline in the east caused a corresponding depression here, and prices have fallen on all grades. There were no sales during the day worthy of note, partly from same cause which operated upon other matters—the absence of buyers. Receipts for the day, 243 bales; shipments, none. We quote dull and nominal:

Ordinary	16	@18
Good Ordinary	18	@20
Low Middling	20	@22
Middling	22	@24
Strict Middling	24	@25
Good Middling	—	@—

We learn from a gentleman who has at some trouble made an approximate estimate, that since the 1st of January last over $3,000,000 have been sent from this city and the country tributary thereto to the northwest for plantation supplies, says the Selma Messenger: It is, perhaps, not too much to estimate that at least as much more must go in the same direction during the remainder of the season. Six millions of dollars from five to six counties, in one year, for bread and meat and forage. And the cotton shipped from this will not exceed $4,500,000. The balance appears on the wrong side; and another year of such financiering will utterly destroy the planting interests of this section. Shall we forever be 'hewers of wood and drawers of water' for those 'who hate and despitefully use us?' Our planters must make corn and meat and hay, or surrender their plantations into the hands of the sheriff, and be beggared by their own folly.

There are now, comparatively, very few articles of domestic manufacture that are not superior or equal to the imported, and that do not command a higher price. We make saws of every variety and of the best quality, table cutlery much superior to common imported and bearing a favorable comparison with the best Sheffield goods, edge tools of all descriptions, axes that cannot be equaled in the world, tailors' shears which are actually exported to England to some extent, agricultural implements which are unrivaled in the world, wood screws that are preferred to the English, at a higher price. We have a manufactory of trace chains at Trenton (heretofore all supplied from Birmingham) which are said to be equal to the imported, and bring about the same price. We use no imported door locks, and import no plated forks and spoons.

The following table shows the movements of cotton since the commencement of the present cotton year, September 1, 1866, also, the amount of foreign exports, American consumption, present stocks, etc., as taken from official reports:
